The 10 Tallest Buildings In Florida (Ranked By Size)

September 18, 2019

You may typically look to New York or Chicago when it comes to stunning skyscrapers, but an underrated state to consider is sunny Florida. Sure, Florida may be the state of alligators and Mickey Mouse, but it's also home to some pretty impressive structures. In fact, Florida has a total of thirty-seven buildings that reach or exceed a height of 550 feet.

While a majority of these towers were built in Miami, you can also find some in Tampa and Jacksonville. If you plan on traveling to Florida anytime soon, you should consider checking out some of these awe-inspiring towers on your trip. Here are the top ten tallest buildings in Florida.

PANORAMA TOWER - 868 FEET

At a stunning 868 feet, the Panorama Tower currently holds the title for the Tallest Building in Florida. Head to downtown Miami to catch a glimpse of this 85-story structure that includes residential, hotel, retail, and office space.

The City of Miami and the Federal Aviation Administration approved construction of the building all the way back in 2006, but construction was put off due to the recession happening at the time. Fortunately, work on the project began again in 2012 and the tower was officially completed in 2017. If you aren't too scared of heights, a visit to the Panorama Tower will leave you gobsmacked.
